May 21 Event at City of Centralia

The great white house with green shutters and a balcony, built in the early 1860s, was the pioneer home of Joseph Borst. It was considered to be the finest house between Forts Steilacoom and Vancouver. At the time, Borst said the house and barn were so well built they would last for 80 years. Approximately 150 years later, the house is still standing and shows every indication of remaining there for another 100 years.

Oct 15 Event at City of Centralia

The great white house with green shutters and a balcony, built in the early 1860s, was the pioneer home of Joseph Borst. It was considered to be the finest house between Forts Steilacoom and Vancouver. At the time, Borst said the house and barn were so well built they would last for 80 years. Approximately 150 years later, the house is still standing and shows every indication of remaining there for another 100 years.

Rich in history, Lewis County was shaped by the railroads. In keeping with its heritage, the Lewis County Historical Museum is located in the old railroad depot in downtown Chehalis. For a real sense of the past, hop aboard the 1916 steam locomotive #15 in Chehalis or the Mt. Rainier Scenic Railroad for a journey over several wooden bridges, through graceful rolling hills and picturesque farmland.
